

Data Integration

Identifying, classifying and replicating critical data

Every week in the corporate world, companies merge. Every week, some company spins off a major company or division. While business leaders get press coverage for the changes, those in the trenches know that the real work has just started.

Whether two companies merge or a company or division is spun off, decision makers are left with the arduous task of identifying and classifying what data from each application is needed in the new merged or spun off entity. Not all data is needed in the new entity, but critical data required for the successful operation of the company must be classified and made available in forms that applications can use on an immediate basis. MB Foster makes this easy.

Data Assessment

MB Foster's data assessment examines all critical data sources in existing applications. Working with the business teams, a report is made that classifies all important data sources. Based on the business need, MB Foster recommends the appropriate strategies for migrating this data between applications. This can include:

- One time migration of the data
- Daily or weekly batch transfers
- Technology and services to implement real-time replication of the data

MB Foster's comprehensive data experience let's you be certain that all necessary data selection, transformation, movement, replication, and automation is handled, insuring that the data will always be available after completing your business change.

Data Implementation

With hundreds of years of data implementation experience on staff, MB Foster can help with the actual implementation of any data plans that result from the data assessment. This can include:

- Technology to speed up the process
- Automated processes and procedures
- Training of staff in the type, format, and meaning of data to the organization

In every case, we collaborate with customers to protect their data, making sure that customers, employees, partners, and other stakeholders have access to the information they need.
