

REVEAL™ Notification Module

*“I’m automatically notified when my reports are available.
Now, I never waste a minute waiting for the data I need to make fast-moving decisions.”*

In business, not all information is created equal. Some information must be acted on quickly, sometimes the moment it’s generated. Users need to know about time-sensitive information the minute new reports requiring fast or immediate action are available.

Users know when to expect their regularly scheduled reports. What about the reports that are not on predictable production schedules? Are users constantly calling the IT department to inquire about ad hoc reports? Are important decisions being delayed? Opportunities lost?

Eliminate these challenges with the Notification module. Users are automatically alerted by e-mail the instant a new version of a specific report has been captured, stored and authorized for release in REVEAL.

Clicking on the hyperlink included in the email notification will launch a browser to search, download, view or print the report. The Notification Module is particularly valuable to employees and others who need to know about new reports containing time sensitive information not produced on a predetermined schedule.

Features

- Automatically initiates an email notification message to recipients of new reports captured by REVEAL
- Opens the new report when users click on a hyperlink in the notification e-mail
- Notification is managed through REVEAL Administration Manager (RAM)
- Records delivery and receipt of Notification (in conjunction with Reveal Vital Statistics)
- Notifies report owners that reports are ready for validation before general release (in conjunction with Report Release Manager)

“In this industry, it’s the only way to do business today.”
